WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Immediately after the House Democratic caucus, which decreed this morning a recess on the House conferees on the tariff and agreement with the Senate bill, the House conferees went into session in the room of the Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Breckinridge, of Arkansas, had been advising with the conferees, said that another meeting with the conferees would not be necessary and that the House conferees would bring in a report receding from the disagreement to the Senate amendments and concurring in them, which would pass the bill.

It was the intention of the Democratic managers of the House to finish up everything to-day by having the Committee on Rules present a special order to carry out the mandate of the caucus. The intention was to pass the Tariff bill, and then follow with the other bills and the caucus resolution.

These bills have all been prepared, although they were not reported on the Ways and Means Committee, or any regular order, these preliminaries will be dispensed with under a special order from the Committee on Rules.

Speaker Crisp and Representative Outhwaite, of the Rules Committee, were telegraphed for by his colleagues, but it was said that he could not reach Washington before 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The two Republican members of the Rules Committee, Messrs. Reed and Burrows, were called in at 12.30. It was thought possible that they will waive their absence from the Committee.

This, however, it was said they would not do unless they could secure reasonable time for debate.

The absence of Mr. Outhwaite will probably postpone a decisive vote on any of the propositions until to-morrow.

PROCEEDINGS IN CAUCUS.

Mr. Wilson Says the Sugar Trust Is the People by the Throat.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—An hour before 10 o'clock this morning, the time for the House Democratic caucus, members began to arrive at the Capitol, and hasty consultations were held on the course to be pursued. Speaker Crisp was joined in his private office by Chairman Wilson and Representatives Turner, McMillin and Montgomery, making the full membership of the House Democratic Conference Committee.

Representative Breckinridge, of Arkansas, an advisory member of the conferees, was also present. It was final consultation on the line of action to be taken by the House leaders to the caucus. The meeting lasted until it was 11 o'clock when the caucus convened.

At the caucus, there was a scene of animation on the floor of the House. Representatives Tracy, Straus, Warner and others passed among their associates and uttered the sentiment of loyalty to the conferees. It was apparently uphill work, however, as the current of feeling among the rank and file of members seemed to be setting strongly in favor of accepting the Senate bill without further delay.

At 10 o'clock Speaker Crisp and all the conferees filed out of the Speaker's office and took seats in a body in the forward part of the Democratic side.

There was an ominous silence as they arrived. At that time 153 Democratic members were on the floor. As Mr. Wilson passed through the corridor to the House he was asked as to the result of the conference in the Speaker's room, but answered, "I cannot make it known yet."

Chairman Wilson puts the case. Chairman Wilson took the floor immediately after the roll-call and began a statement of the situation. He spoke calmly and dispassionately, and received the closest attention. Members left their seats and crowded eagerly about him. It is seldom that such interest has been shown at a caucus.

Mr. Wilson began with a recital of the difficulties that have been encountered. He went over each stage of the situation with much detail. He said that each step had been pursued with an ardent desire to support with honor the desires of the House of Representatives and to resist what was regarded as the unreasonable demands of the Senate.

Mr. Wilson took up the contested schedules, particularly sugar, coal and iron ore, and reviewed the differences in conference on these main items. He took up each proposition on sugar and spoke of the vast profits to the Sugar Trust, which would result from many of these propositions. He did not indicate in the sharp criticism that was expected on the motives of the Senate conferees.

Mr. Wilson spoke of the fight made by the House conferees for a specific duty on sugar, on the ground that under an ad valorem system it would be impossible to tell, on account of the invoice methods, the exact advantage which would accrue to the Sugar Trust.

Sugar Trust's Coming Profits.
He made the remarkable statement that he had been credibly informed and believed that the Sugar Trust had anticipated the enactment of the Senate sugar schedule, purchased $12,000,000 worth of raw sugar. If this were true, he said, the profits accruing to the Trust from this investment in advance of the enactment of the Senate schedule would be at least $40,000,000.

Mr. Wilson also pointed out at length the embarrassment attending the efforts to adjust the coal and iron schedules.

"The great battle," said Mr. Wilson, "is between the American people and the Sugar Trust. It is a battle in which the Trust has taken to people by the throat, and it will never end until we throw off the grip."

Senate Conferees Corroded.
There was enthusiastic applause at this. Mr. Wilson proceeded to state that the House conferees had been willing to concede almost everything,
